Second-grader becomes author, donates proceeds to PAWS Chicago

Maura Lane hugging her dog Sabu

Seven-year-old Chicago student Maura Lane published her first book (for children ages 2-6), SABU & ME, with the help of her father, Jeffrey Markowitz. SABU & ME is the story of Maura and her dog Sabu and the wonderful times they spent together during Maura's early life. Written by Maura herself, the book is a re-telling of her earliest memories with her best friend. Since Sabu was a rescue dog Maura thought it was a good idea to donate profits from her book to PAWS Chicago.

Maura is a student in Chicago, who speaks French and loves to travel. Her passion is playing with, and taking care of, her dog Sabu. Sabu was rescued in St. Louis, and he has also lived in Chicago and London, where he chased the Queen's guards every morning. Sabu lives with Maura and her parents, Jeff and Marianne, in Chicago and Miami.

Maura's father, Jeff, inspired her to write the book. It's the perfect bedtime story, and a great way to introduce children to the value of friendship, and to the unconditional love that our pets have for us.
